quite & orange - cdak a demo a new outstanding demoscene released demo and The Assembly

Author : admin

I was referred by a friend of mine (Pro-Xex) to an amazing futuristic Sci-Fi demo.

I found the video quite inspirational and I guess generally it represents the IT world currently out there and even the internet.
The internet association was the fist one that poped up in my mind while I was watching the demo video.
I still don't know if the author meant this by that or he meant to represent the complex inter-processes flowing in a computer motherboard or who knows but still I'm sure he was referring to computers :)
I was nicely surprised to know that still people do code such a high quality visual demos and the cutlure is still there.
Also I was reminded by Pro-Xex about the existence of the Assembly yearly conference
ASSEMBLY is a computer festival, a demo party and a LAN party all rolled into one. It is four day party running 24h/day for computer hobbyists. read more about it in the assembly faq

The assembly conference includes events like; concerts, seminars, IT competitions and even robot wars :)
Anyways here is the quote & orange - cdak video quite&orange - cdak from unc on Vimeo.

The video is uploaded to vimeo - a youtube like video service

It's always nice to see some youtube and google competitors out there :)

Another very interesting internet place to visit is the pouet.net .This website is an invaluable resource for demos
So if you're really after demoscene and demos go and check some demos there.
Cheers! :)
