Theater Sports

Today we had nothing in our schedule. So I investigated a bit what is expatriate because we have assignment for the next week. We had to create an blank application form for a real expatriate agreement. The day was pretty normal thanks God. At the morning I felt really bad like sick did my usual 'warming' exercises. Around 11 we had a breakfast with Ina as usual in the kitchen on the 5th floor. upstairs in the cooridor and in the kitchen it was a total mess, there was a birthday party happening there so it looked like a bomb has fallen. Two hours or so I was feeling much much better. At around 3 we went to the university because we had to give a picture which is required for our future student cards at HAN. The studentcards are supposed to be ready in a week or a little less. We spend around 2 hours in the canteen, Ina and her group of three people were discussing how to make their project. For the next week we had to hand in two assignments. In 6 o'clock we went to the so called Theater Sports. In case you wonder what is Theater Sports it is a sort of games which are supposed to develop your artistic and communicating skills. Well this games are really stupid and at the same time fun and educational, we didn't waited for the games to over and during the little break we had. We took our way home, first we went to the food store Alberheim and we got some chicken meat, mushrooms and milk. We got back home and Ina cooked it in a really good way with carrots. At night just after our dinner I spoke over skype with my Mom and Dad, pretty boring eh? Well I hope today it wasn't the next lost day. Although for a moment I really thought so.END-----
