Today I helped my cousing to fix his internet connection on a laptop.
The laptop was running Vista. A real nightmare, this OS is really heavy and even messier than Windows XP.
What else I'm trying to cope with life. Life is tough. What I can say....

Also I started a vsftp server on a FreeBSD box it took me some time because of configuration issues.

Right now I'mtrying to run a snort server still unsuccessfully for some reason the snort daemon does not start.

In the college everything is going in the old manner, except we have started studying Marketing II and another subject I forgot the name it is supposed to be something like statistics. The day was quiet with a bit of work.
